IN THE MOST BEAUTIFUL WAY

Allah 'azza wa Jalla, likes people doing their job as well as they can. In the hadith of our Prophet is said;

يُنْفِقُهُ

“When one of you does a job, let him do his best, let him do the best that is possible for him.” Do not do it just any how; whatever you do, it is good to do it perfectly.

Our religion is perfect. Our Prophet is the most perfect man. They are examples to us, [and] we ought to be worthy of them. We need to be on their path. Let it be any small ordinary job, one still receives the fruit of it [only] if he does it well. He receives its benefit here and in the next world. Here on earth too, people talk about a man and say, “So-and-so is doing a good job, or is building this gadget well.” Even a painter who does his job well is in high demand. That aside, even a most disliked job receives people’s appreciation. Even devaluing little jobs brings harm to a person.

Even if it is the most trivial job, do it as well as you can, so that you receive its benefit. What is done is then appreciated. Today most people do their jobs carelessly, because others are unable to check behind them. Not that others do not know, they do know, but the one who does the job is not aware of his own work’s importance. Therefore great or small, a job must be done as well as possible. It should not be done in a hurry; it should not be done with greed, otherwise it harms [both] the one who does it and others.

Then Allah will ask, “Why did you cause this harm to these people? Why did you deceive them?” Our concern is not only this world, but also the next. May Allah let us do the best of all. Let us not follow our nafs and cause harm to ourselves and others, inshaAllah.
